County Councillors Lose In Division Elections

Elections in two divisions of the County of Vulcan No. 2 on Saturday, March 17, resulted in two new members being elected to the county council.

In Division 2, County Chairman J. E. Carlson of Champion was defeated at the polls by Arthur W. Ulrich, Champion district farmer, who was making his first bid for a seat on the county council. Tabulation of results at the three polls showed Mr. Ulrich receiving 100 votes to Mr. Carlson's 53 votes.

In Division 10, Frank N. Thurber of Blackie defeated Councillor Clarence W. Green of Mossleigh. Mr. Thurber polled a total of 116 votes to Mr. Green's 39.

Division 2 results by polls were as follows:

Champion Village Office Poll: Carlson 16, Ulrich 64, spoiled ballots 4.

A. L. Siler Residence Poll: Carlson 27, Ulrich 14.

Vulcan County Office Poll: Carlson 10, Ulrich 22.

Totals: Carlson 53, Ulrich 100, spoiled 4.

Division 10 results at the two polls were:

Mossleigh School Poll: Green 27, Thurber 80.

Herrington School Poll: Green 12, Thurber 36, spoiled 1.

Totals: Green 39, Thurber 116, spoiled 1.

About 50% of eligible voters attended the polls in both divisions. C.H. Andrews was returning officer.

J. E. Carlson first became a member of the M.D. of Vulcan council in 1945 and was appointed reeve of the municipal district in 1948. In March, 1951, Mr. Carlson was appointed chairman of the council of the newly created County of Vulcan No. 2, a post he has held since that time. He is a member of the board of the Foothills General Hospital, Calgary, construction of which will commence this year and is president of the Alberta Hospitals Association. He is chairman of the Vulcan Municipal Hospital District board and will likely continue in that position, as hospital board

Explore Money-raising Ventures

Artificial Ice Installation Would Cost About $50,000

Though the ice is gone and skates have been put away for another season, work is going on with the Vulcan and District Athletic Commission in its ways and means quest for artificial ice in Vulcan.

Five replies have been returned to the ten questionnaires sent to towns, with artificial ice and these were reviewed at a meeting of the Commission Monday night. Towns replying were Vermilion, Innisfail, Stettler, Camrose and Hinton.

Cost of installing artificial ice in Vulcan is set at $50,000, including a cement floor, strongly recommended by other towns. Under normal circumstances financing would be helped by the application of the Provincial Recreational Grant but this has already been expended in the local case.

The possibility of government assistance is still being pursued and an immediate survey of town businessmen, individuals and the rural population is to be conducted to get an expression of opinion on the matter and an estimate of what financial assistance might be forthcoming. No soliciting will be done.

Other money-raising avenues being investigated are car and livestock raffles, and the possibility at some future time of forming an Agricultural Society and staging Class B type fairs.

The addition of the cement floor to the ice scheme is felt by the Commission to be of benefit to the whole community in providing for accommodation for 4-H programs, meetings, exhibitions, roller skating and other gatherings where facilities are not now available. Another suggestion was that the scouting movement might be aided with additional facilities relieving their present crowded state.

members are now appointed by county and town councils and do not need to be council members.

Clarence W. Green has represented Division 10 since 1954. He was a member of the school committee, represented the County on the High River Municipal Hospital Board and was the County's representative on the Wyndham Park Committee.

The two new councillors, Frank Thurber and Arthur Ulrich, will take their places on the county council at the April meeting.

Carnegie Course

The sixth session of the Dale Carnegie Course was held last Wednesday with 37 members and four guests from Calgary present. Instructor Frank McCool officiated with Vulcan's graduates assisting. There were three book awards given for outstanding speeches—"Lincoln: The Unknown" was presented to Ted Holmes, Art Ulrich and Lionel Lucas.

We at the Advocate look at the above photo and smile now but it was not ever thus. This is a "Kelly" automatic press, purchased from a plant in Calgary to help relieve the pressure on other equipment now handling the commercial printing end of the business, but the painful memory of the press involves the -10 degrees weather with a south-easter blowing, that heralded the grand entrance of this huge hunk of cold metal to the office Feb. 26. Local trucker Cam Middleton contracted the hauling job, the second similar excursion for him on behalf of the office in the last three months, and finds shifting hogs or cattle with a stock prod or driving a tractor onto his truck box a much simpler proposition than cautiously winching a couple of tons of press on and off his truck.

Shown above, two County workmen and equipment manoeuvre the press into the office in the final stage of the move.

The High River Municipal Hospital Board has been campaigning to have the location of the proposed auxiliary hospital switched from Vulcan to High River, but apparently no change in location is being considered.

At the regular March meeting of the council of the Town of Vulcan, Councillors Sutherland, Ness, Burchak, Richardson and Smith were named to sit as the 1962 Court of Revision.

The manager of the Vulcan Hotel was advised that the roughening of the slippery cement sidewalks adjacent to the hotel will be carried out as soon as the weather permits. It was also requested that the trees be removed from the hotel boulevard and this will also be done.

On behalf of the Vulcan Library Board, R. L. Jamison and E. G. McPherson asked for assistance from the town in supplying shelving and a librarian's desk. They were advised that finances would not permit further grants to be made at the present time.

A public meeting is planned in the near future with special speakers on Auxiliary Hospitals.

Mrs. Doris Seager, Assistant Executive Secretary of the AARN introduced by Mrs. Graham, addressed the meeting, bringing greetings from the provincial office and the latest nursing news in the Provincial and Dominion fields. She suggested the AARN open its meetings to the public whenever possible, in the interest of furthering health education and also to encourage more of the active nurses to attend by having good professional programs.

An interesting question period was followed by an excellent lunch.

Sidor - Moore Nuptials, Calgary

St. Andrew's United Church, Calgary, was the scene of the wedding of Glenda Jeanne Moore, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Moore, Carmangay, and Kenneth Ivan Sidor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sidor, Leduc, Alta.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Hartwell Ilsey. The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a brocade taffeta cocktail length gown, and a feathered head piece. She carried a bouquet of American beauty roses entwined with white satin streamers.

Miss Cheri Church, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a moss green chiffon gown with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Gordon Mason of Leduc attended the groom as best man.

A reception was held in the Wales Hotel dining room. The bride's table was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake complemented by mixed bouquets. Rev. Ilsey proposed the toast to the bride, with the groom responding.

Miss Susan Stewart was in charge of the guest book and gift table.

The young couple left for a honeymoon to southern Alberta and Great Falls, before taking up residence in Leduc, Alberta.

ARDA and PFRA Discussed

Little Bow Water Project Receives Encouragement

A proposal that water storage dams be constructed on the Little Bow River and part of the flow of the Highwood River be diverted into the Little Bow during high-water periods received considerable encouragement from Harry Hargrave of Regina, a director of PFRA, at a public meeting held in Vulcan Tuesday evening, March 20th.

Attended by about 125 interested farmers, as well as representatives of the County of Vulcan, Municipal District of Willow Creek, and the towns of Vulcan, Champion and Carmangay, the meeting was organized by the Agricultural Service Board of the County of Vulcan, with Robert S. Irwin acting as chairman.

Primary purpose of the meeting was to learn what projects in this area could be undertaken through ARDA, the Agricultural Development and Rehabilitation Act recently passed by the federal government.

PFRA will probably be the "working arm" of ARDA in Western Canada, said Mr. Hargrave. ARDA will study and possibly undertake feasible projects that would likely improve or stabilize the living standards of certain areas. ARDA projects will be joint undertakings of the provincial and federal governments, with local governments also involved in some cases.

Mr. Hargrave expressed the opinion that the Little Bow project was very similar to many projects undertaken and completed by PFRA and that the construction of two storage dams on the Little Bow and diversion of water from the Highwood might qualify as a straight PFRA project.

It was brought out at the meeting that last summer in particular there was absolutely no water flowing down the Little Bow. About 3,200 cows are owned by the farmers living along the 75-mile long waterway, but they were unable to depend upon the stream for stock watering. Some water is diverted from the Highwood into Mosquito Creek, but this tributary only empties into the Little Bow about 40 miles downstream. It was felt that water should be diverted into the Little Bow waterway near High River, so that the water could be used by stockmen and farmers along the entire length of the stream. Water storage reservoirs on the Little Bow could also possibly be utilized by nearby towns for water supply.

An important point from the PFRA viewpoint, said Mr. Hargrave, was that water diverted into the Little Bow in the spring and held in reservoirs would eventually end up in the Travers Reservoir and be used in the Northern Irrigation District.

A resolution was passed by the meeting to the effect that, through the provincial government, the federal government be asked to make a comprehensive survey so that an early start could be made on the Little Bow project.

In his talk, Mr. Hargrave stated that improper use of land will be studied under the ARDA program. Some sub-marginal lands should be taken out of grain production and put into grass for community pastures, he said. Cattle raising is a growing industry and last year alone PFRA was involved in the construction of over 11,000 stock watering projects, such as dug-outs, dams, etc. PFRA pays about half the cost of such projects.

Larger projects require the prior endorsement of the provincial government and if the application is approved by Ottawa PFRA can then go ahead with the project.

Representing the provincial government at the meeting was Gordon Sterling of the Department of Agriculture, member of the provincial ARDA Advisory Committee.

He stated that the Little Bow project would have to be cleared through the provincial Water Resources Board, but it appeared feasible as either an ARDA or straight PFRA project.

Some land improvement schemes on a large basis might possibly come under the ARDA program, he said in reply to a question. Drainage of land that is under water or of alkali land might come under the Act, but only if such projects were on a large scale. Establishment of community pastures would come under the program but these usually involved land that was non-productive for grain growing or in poor areas where such pastures were urgently needed to enable farmers to have small herds of cattle and so bring their standards of living up to an acceptable level.

A committee will be formed to further the Little Bow project and any other projects in the area that might come under the ARDA program. With the County of Vulcan Agricultural Service Board as a nucleus, the committee will also include representatives of the Willow Creek Municipal District, the mayors of Vulcan, Champion and Carmangay, the president of the Vulcan District Board of Trade and the MLA for Little Bow, Peter Dawson. Members may be added from other interested towns, municipalities or organizations.

Born at Odessa, Russia, Mr. Hoffman came to Canada in 1904 and to the Vulcan district, where he continued to farm until he retired. He lived for many years in town. He was a member of the Institute for the Blind and of St. Andrew's Catholic church.

Surviving him are three daughters, Mrs. M. (Margaret) Klump, Ferndale, Wash.; Mrs. Wm. (Bertha) Howell, Rosebud; and Mrs. C. ## Canadian Players Please Audience

The Canadian Players presentation of Saint Joan was enjoyed by an appreciative audience of about 250 at the high school auditorium on Thursday evening, March 15.

The cast was comprised of 10 actors, with some portraying as many as three different parts. Despite the very minimum in stage settings and period costumes, the life of Saint Joan was brought home very realistically to the audience through the superb acting of the players. It was an excellent and enjoyable production.

In the afternoon, Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" was presented to about 375 county high school students and their teachers, many of whom also attended the evening performance of Saint Joan.

Despite the high calibre of this year's Canadian Players' production, attendance was not large enough to offset expenses. The County Arts Council, sponsors of the Players' appearance here, reported a loss of about $50, but to assure the continuance of this worthwhile project are planning to hold in the fall a Halloween Masquerade Ball to raise the necessary funds to again sponsor the appearance of the Canadian Players here next year. The plays to be presented in 1963 will be "King Lear" for the high school students, and an evening performance of the comedy, "The Lady's Not For Burning."

Keystone Class

The Keystone Class met at the home of Myrtle Ruthberg for the March meeting. Janet Warr presided, opening with a hymn and prayer. Fourteen members and one visitor were present.

A donation was given the Bill Reece Mission work in Hong Kong. Karen Smith brought the devotional, "Signs to watch for in a Christian Life," which was enjoyed by all.

A lovely lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Anderson and a vote of thanks given. The April meeting will be held in the church parlors.

FERTILIZERS
WEATHER

The experience of many farmers proves the use of fertilizer to be profitable even under adverse, dry conditions. These farmers are convinced if it is worth planting the seed, it is worth using fertilizer.

Research on the Prairies shows crops grown on fertilized soils give bigger yields per inch of moisture than on similar soils not receiving fertilizer. For example, it has been shown a bushel of grain grown on fertilized land requires less moisture (about 2/3 as much) than a bushel grown on unfertilized land.

Plan to make the most of every inch of available moisture in 1962. Apply the right rate and type of high analysis, readily soluble Elephant Brand fertilizer.

The Educational Battle

Educators today find themselves in a precarious position in Canada. Suddenly the nation in a single decade appears to be turning to its educational system for a solution to its great unemployment problem. In the same years our society has become increasingly complex and our need for superior methods, teachers, schools and universities is more and more apparent.

But not only is society demanding more from its educational facilities, but today we find our school system competing in international politics. In other lands, where the direction of government does not come from free elections, dictatorships are openly boasting that their educational progress is a weapon they intend to use in their drive to overcome our civilization and thus our democratic way of life.

Because unemployment is closest to home it must become the immediate battle in which our people must engage. We cannot buy ourselves out of our unemployment problem, although the governments of this nation on almost every level have been trying to do a pretty good job at doing just that with our money.

In Canada today the great majority of unemployed citizens have a bleak outlook. Many of them didn't get to high school and the great majority of those who did had only a few years or months of secondary education. To top this off they did not acquire any trade or skill after their formal education. Thus it is the unskilled labor, many of whom do not possess enough education for proper technical training, who are the real problem we must overcome.

A study by the Canadian Conference on Education suggests that there are 2,000,000 Canadians that are "functionally illiterate."

The report goes on to explain that "bold and adventuresome plans must be made for the socio-economic health of the Canadian community."

"In many ways we cannot be satisfied with a patching up of customs and institutions that have served us satisfactorily in the past. New departures are necessary," suggests the report.

In recent years Canada has enjoyed a new kind of recession—"one masked in general prosperity and cloaked in contradictions."

The study recommends more and better vocational courses in schools and apprenticeship programs, retraining for adults, and imparting of more knowledge of the "world of work" in schools, especially for urban children who "lack the early experience of chores and wide early acquaintances with different types of employment."

But not only must we educate ourselves out of our unemployment problems, we must at the same time improve our methods of learning, our methods of teaching and the facilities which serve the student and the educators. It seems obvious in this age of rapidly expanding horizons that our students today must not only learn more, but they must learn better.

To some extent our generation is finding that wars can be fought on different types of fronts. Today we must so equip our students that they will have the knowledge and ability to move into a world where many of the freedoms and responsibilities we have taken so much for granted are being challenged by individuals who are no longer illiterate, but well equipped and trained to speak for their own way of life.

Our big battle to improve our own educational system is just beginning. We can only reach for victory when the least among us realizes the important part he or she can play by supporting the progressive programs in education which are beginning to be seen on the Canadian educational horizon. Our educational system must adapt itself with greater speed, if possible, to the new demands which are being placed upon it. The very future of the nation depends upon our ability to finance and understand the need for a great national effort in this direction.

— LAST WEEK'S MARKET REPORT —

FRIDAY, MARCH 16th— We didn't have any of those real thick high yielding steers that could have brought up to $23.50. Those we had had sold very well with an end going for export. Heifers were bought on a more selective basis and cows were higher. Good to low choice butcher steers $21.00 to $22.80; Good to low choice butcher heifers $19.50 to $21.00; Good grain fed cows, $14.00 to $17.00; Fair to medium cows $11.00 to $14.00; Bulls are in good demand at from $15.00 to $18.00; Stocker and feeder steers are scarce and sell from $20.00 to $22.50 for the better kinds. Stocker and feeder heifers are slow. Stock cows are in good demand and sell from $15.00 to $20.00. There is no use in bringing us an old thin cow that is going to calve after awhile and expect a big price. You must remember that the buyers are just as smart as the sellers. Steer calves sell well from $20.00 to $24.00, weight and quality being factors. Heifer calves $17.50 to $21.00. The latter price is for calves that are carrying enough flesh to interest the packers.

SATURDAY, MARCH 17th— The warmer weather as we predicted made for better prices. Weaner pigs $6.50 to $10.00; Feeder pigs $10.50 to $20.00; Piggy gilts and sows $40.00 to $75.00; Boars $15.00 to $27.50; Baby calves $20.00 to $50.00. ## FILLING THE DUGOUT

REGINA.—To people in many walks of life, a northwest wind means only bitter cold, but to prairie farmers it represents much more. It means swirling snow that will pile up in brush and stubble, or will cause drifts around farm buildings. These accumulations can later be converted into useable water supplies which can be stored in appropriately constructed farm reservoirs for domestic, stock-watering, irrigation or any number of other farm uses. Conservation of snow for these purposes assumes added significance when consideration is given to the fact that 85 per cent of annual runoff is derived from this source.

Although nature is required to do her part, the farmer can do much to supplement her efforts. R. C. Whitton, Chief of the P.F.R.A. Water Services Division, says that in a year of normal snowfall in Saskatchewan, it will require runoff from approximately 50 acres of flat, untreed land to fill a normal sized dugout 12 feet deep, 65 feet wide, and 200 feet long. If the dugout is situated on rolling land dotted with clumps of brush, then the acreage required to produce sufficient water to fill the dugout can be substantially reduced.

Naturally, the farmer wants his dugout reasonably close to his farm buildings so that water can be pumped or hauled to the house or barn without undue cost or effort. If the terrain is such that insufficient snow will pile up in the drainage area, then artificial measures must be taken. Hundreds of farmers across the prairies have done this in various ways. The tree belt is perhaps the most effective means of catching and retaining snow in a position so that when it melts it will find its way to the dugout. A wide variety of trees are suitable for this purpose. These range all the way from relatively low growing shrubs such as the caragana to tall trees which reach a height of 15 to 20 feet at maturity.

The tree belt should be planted in an east-west direction so as to take advantage of winds from the north and northwest. Drifts will form on the south side of this tree belt, and if the dugout is located south of the tree belt and downstream from it, then no trouble should be experienced in obtaining the two acre feet of water required to fill an average sized dugout in a year of normal snowfall.

The snow fence is also widely used, and is reasonably effective in causing snow to pile up. The wooden lath fence, although not as efficient as the tree belt, is more versatile, inasmuch as it can be moved to any location desired.

The third conventional method of trapping snow is ridging. This consists of blading snow in the field into windrows. By this method, the flat topography of a field can be broken, and thus cause snow to pile up to a much greater depth in the field. This method is particularly effective in extremely flat areas where the brush cover is at a minimum.

Then there are less conventional methods of obtaining the same results as those produced by the other three types of obstacle. If no tree belt has been grown, and for one reason or another snow fence is not available, anything else around the farm which will form an obstacle in the path of the blowing snow can be used. Some farmers have used bales of straw, others have tried pagewire fence stuffed with Russian Thistle, and have had considerable success. If some land clearing has been done the previous summer, the loose brush produced can be used quite effectively. Some have even strung their farm machinery out in a long line, but this is not advisable due to the adverse weathering effect on the machinery.

Thought and planning can spell the difference in the successful operation of a dugout, particularly in a year of limited snowfall when conservation measures take on added significance.

ScotiaBANK Home Improvement Loan

Maybe a loose shingle started it. Or worn-out weather stripping. Or a gnawing band of termites. Whatever it was, plugging a leak properly can be expensive—and, of course, the longer it's left, the more costly a repair becomes. This goes for peeling paint, crumbling concrete, and missing mortar too.

Yes, keeping a house in shape sometimes costs a lot of money, and occasionally it may cost more than you have on hand. What then? The answer may be a ScotiaBank Home Improvement Loan... money you can borrow at low interest for repairs... or for extra bedrooms, a garage, a carport, modern heating, new and up-to-date plumbing—things that maintain or improve your home as an investment. Just call at your nearest branch of The Bank of Nova Scotia. See the manager. He will welcome the opportunity to discuss how a ScotiaBank Home Improvement Loan can help you.
